The above information is to be used as a general guideline. It is based upon contaminants normally found in these applications. Some individual applications may have unique contaminants introduced that would require a different media selection to adequately provide removal. If you feel that is the case, please contact CGL for additional technical assistance. Filter selection is dependant upon individual application requirements, including space available and pressure drop.